Hanukkah

President Biden @POTUS

Lighting the menorah is a reminder to hold on to the miracles of hope and faith.

Because when we do, no night is so dark that we can't find the light.

Happy Hanukkah.

@a Joe Biden is a Jew pretending to be Catholic. He recently made a comment that he was praying with his rosary yet he has his own Rabbi and his entire family is married to Jews and his administration is all Jews. In Medieval Spain they called them "Marrano Jews" or Jews that joined the Catholic Church but secretly practiced Judaism.

@a Well, he is like his father the father of all lies. Pray for his soul. He has a very short time before he will suffer for all eternity. This is a direct slap in the face to God, and all of Christ's brethren.

I'm still going to church tomorrow not because it is Easter but because I do at least once a week and my family will be celebrating the resurrection of our savior Jesus Christ.

Spread the good news and love of Jesus Christ.

@ostrachan

When Jesus died on the cross, he did not say, “I did my part to save you—now you do yours.”

Jesus paid it all: Jesus perfectly atoned for sin and said, “It is finished” (Jn 19:30).

Is anyone else's immune system totally shot since the COVID era?

Discussion

I'm a younger millennial (28f) and have never been sick as much as I have been in the past ~6 months. I used to get sick once every other year or every year, but in the past six months I have: gotten COVID at Christmas, gotten a nasty fever/illness coming back from back-to-back work trips in January/February, and now I'm sick yet again after coming back from a vacation in California.

It feels like I literally cannot get on a plane without getting sick, which has never really been a problem for me. Has anyone had a similar experience?

Edit: This got a LOT more traction than I thought it would. To answer a few recurring questions/themes: I am generally very healthy -- I exercise, eat nutrient rich food, don't smoke, etc.; I did not wear a mask on my flights these last few go arounds since I had been free of any illnesses riding public transit to work and going to concerts over the past year+, but at least for flights, it's back to a mask for me; I have all my boosters and flu vaccines up to date

Edit 2: Vaccines are safe and effective. I regret this has become such a hotbed for vaccine conspiracy theories
